

Professor Mohd. Nordin Hasan is a leading environmental scientist and is Emeritus Professor of Environment and Development at Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (National University of Malaysia). He has contributed significantly towards understanding issues relating to the environment, development and sustainability, particularly in relation to ecosystem management. He has extensive experience in forest conservation, ecosystem management, implementation of Multilateral Environmental Agreements in the ASEAN Region, indicators of sustainable development and related areas, and has represented the Government of Malaysia at a number of important international fora.

Professor Nordin Hasan has a large number of publications including 11 books to his credit. He has served in a number of important national and international Committees and Panels, and was the founding Director of the Institute for Environment and Development, Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia. He holds a number of important honorary positions, including Adjunct Professor at the Centre for Resource Environmental Studies at the Australian National University and is the Global Thematic Leader on Ecosystem Status Indicators in the Commission on Ecosystem Management of IUCN, The World Conservation Union. He is a Fellow of the Academy of Sciences Malaysia.